

Renick Pioneers

by Tom & Betty Renick

Revised Edition 2009

Preface

Searching for our Renick Roots

With America's Bicentennial in 1976 and the publication of Roots, many Americans experienced a renewed interest in their own family tree. Because my grandfather, Thomas Wyatt Renick, died before I was born and my great grandfather William Nathaniel Renick was estranged from his children and family, little of the Renick family history was known by my father or me. My father thought our Renick name might have been German in origin. He knew that his grandfather moved to Indiana from the Glasgow, Kentucky area, just before the Civil War. He also remembered that his grandfather had written and published a poetry book about 1900, and that his cousin had a copy of the book. In the preface to the book, my great grandfather told about his parents and other ancestors who were pioneer settlers in Barren County, Kentucky. Since my great grandfather was born in 1837, this little bit of family history was able to transport me back into early family tree branches.

In 1979 my wife, Betty, and I started research in earnest and spent many hours in the genealogy section of our local library. I also called other Renicks to see if they had any information about our family history. One of my telephone calls was to a Mack Renick here in Florida who told me he had a book called "The Renicks of Greenbrier" published in 1951 by Benjamin Franklin Harlow Jr. Mack's father had purchased the book just because it had the name RENICK on the cover. He was willing to loan me his copy of the book. I found the book interesting and thought I might be descended from the Virginia Renick branch that was captured by Shawnee Indians. Some of the former captives settled near Lewisburg in Greenbrier County (West) Virginia, after their release.

The original book cover read PIONEER RENICK'S with an apostrophe. The typesetter thought an apostrophe was needed. We corrected the mistake on the second revision by changing it to Renick Pioneers.

Pictured above is Betty standing on a chair with a pedigree chart she drew to outline the Greenbrier Renick families. It was taller than her five foot two inch frame. Her chart proved that neither my line nor Mack's were directly connected to the Renicks of Greenbrier.

Our search had to continue.

In our quest to find my direct ancestors, we learned that in 1889, Edward Ireland Renick (1846 -1900) had written "The Renick Family of Virginia" which was published by the Southern History Association. E.I. Renick was a law partner of Woodrow Wilson, who later became President. Because he was a "Greenbrier Renick" his writings also produced little information about my line.

Later we found a biography in an old Kentucky history book for James L. Renick of Hart County, Kentucky who had the same ancestors as my great grandfather. The book, published in 1920, recorded that James had two children, Frank and Mary Renick. I took a chance and called Munfordville Kentucky information, and sure enough, they had a listing for Frank Renick. I dialed the number; Mary answered and was surprised to learn we shared the same branch of the family tree. We later we had a reunion in Munfordville Kentucky with Frank and Mary who had retired and returned to the old home place. They invited other kinfolk, and a nice article was printed in the Hart County News about the family reunion after 150 years.

Mary gave me the name of Mrs. Augusta Merrill in Independence Missouri who had done extensive research on the Renick Family and who was able to furnish more information on my line as well as other lines.

Mrs. Merrill then put me in touch with Mrs. Dorothy Luttrell of Austin Texas. She also had copious notes about the Renick clan. These two ladies spent years researching the family tree, but they had never published their findings. They were both descendents of Colonel Henry Renick, the older brother of my ancestor, James Wright Renick. Later, we exchanged information with Major General Roderick Renick, Bill and Sue Renick Whalen and many others.

We finally decided to print the Renick Pioneer booklet and mailed about 100 copies around the country in 1981. After publication of the booklet, we mailed all of our research to Bill and Sue Whalen. General Renick had contacted me shortly after the book was published, and I referred him to Dorothy Luttrell.

Dorothy Luttrell, Augusta Merrill, Sue Whalen and Rod Renick are all deceased. It's not clear what research materials of theirs have been retained or by whom.

We are grateful to all of our clan who went before and published their findings, and we want to thank all those who have helped us gather information about our Renick family, both past and present. This Renick family history is from many sources, but family history is never complete, but understanding our family history helps us understand who we are today.

The Internet, by providing more information and contacts, has renewed interest among the Renicks in establishing links to their ancestors.

There will always be additions and corrections to our story.

2007 National Renick Reunion:

We held our first national Renick reunion in July 2007 in Lewisburg and Renick West Virginia. Barbara Renick gave an excellent presentation about researching our ancestors. Sandra Stark and Glen Gealy prepared, printed and shared a well-researched booklet about our early Renick history, and Mrs. Betsy Deggs arraigned a tour of Historic Lewisburg. Milton and Brinda Renick, who live in the Lewisburg area, were invaluable in helping plan all of our local events. We really appreciated the hospitality and warm welcome provided by the ladies of the Renick Presbyterian Church where we held our Friday meeting. Milton and Brinda hosted a farewell picnic at Droop Mountain where this photo was taken:

History of the Renick Name

European family names came into being around the twelfth century as population increased. A family's surname came from a man's occupation, a physical characteristic such as Short, a combination of father's first name and relationship such as John's son, or a location or area. Our surname comes from the small village named Renwick south of the Scottish border in the Cumberland area of northern England.

The RENICK name has been spelled in a variety of ways over the years, such as Renwick, Rennick, Rennicks, Renix, Rennock and other spellings.

The variety of spellings of the Renick name in old documents seems to be the result of poor spelling and clerical errors by record keepers and census takers. Some of our clan use two "N's" in the spelling. Two people who attended our first National reunion in 2007 at Renick WV also use the version Rennick. Bob Rennick got his second 'n' added when he joined the service due to a clerical error. He kept the spelling rather than redoing all the paperwork. In pronouncing Renwick, in the British Isles, the "w" is silent, and by the time George Renick and his sons came to America in the early 1700's, the "w" had already been dropped.

Recorded coats-of-arms were painted on shields and were used in Europe in the Middle Ages to identify families.

Two modern coats-of-arms for English Renwick families have been located. One family is in the southern part of England, and the other is from the Northumberland area, near the Renwick area. This Renwick family operates a shipping business, and their coat-of-arms has a horse galloping on a field at the bottom; two sailing ships on top with a raised hand between; above the shield is a griffin-type head; the motto reads: For True Liberty. No record of any old coat-of-arms has been located for Renwick or Renick.

The Renicks in Scotland

Our Renwick ancestors originally came from the violent Scottish-English border region, and were probably living in the lowlands of Scotland 400 to 500 years ago. The people of the Lowlands of Scotland descended from an intermingling of Gaels, Britons, Romans, Angles, Saxons, Normans, Flemish, and the Scots. The Scots were a Celtic tribe, originated in Ireland and had, during the Third and Fourth Centuries AD, invaded and established colonies in Alba, as Scotland was then known.

The Lowlanders, around the twelfth century, pledged their loyalty to the feudal lord rather than to a clan. They were a hardened people who were caught between England and the Scottish Highlanders. The English and the Highlanders had been enemies for many centuries. The Highlanders had resisted the Romans and all the succeeding invaders who had attempted to subjugate them, and they occasionally launched raids against the English. In the process, they invariably overran the Lowlands region, lying between the two opponents.

Life in the Lowlands was therefore neither easy nor particularly stable. The continual struggle to exist, which was the daily life of the Scottish Lowlanders, molded and toughened them, and despite the devastation that the Highlanders and English wreaked on their homes and farmlands, they survived. Lowland Scots were culturally different from Scottish Highlanders or Irish Catholics. Our Renick ancestors spoke Scots-English and did not wear kilts. They played fiddles and Scottish small pipes, rather than the Highland great bagpipes.

Religious Persecution in Scotland

Two early Renwicks, James and John, are found in Scottish history in the 1600's during a time of religious persecution called the Killing Time.

In Scotland the Protestant reformation began in the 1500's with John Knox, founder of the Presbyterian faith and the most outspoken leader against the Catholic faith. The kings of England tried to force the Scot reformers to conform to worship practices of the Church of England in order to have a uniform church. The Protestants in Scotland signed a national covenant, pledging the signers to maintain their chosen forms of worship and church government. These people became known as Covenanters. A period of Civil wars ensued and Presbyterians were tortured, imprisoned, killed or sent to the colonies as religious prisoners.

On September 5, 1685, the Henry & Francis had set sail from Leith Scotland transporting religious prisoners to the colonies. On board this ship was John Renwick. Although thirty-one people died during the journey, John Renwick was alive when the ship made landfall at Perth Amboy, New Jersey in December 1685. After arriving, these prisoners refused to become indentured servants, and after winning a court case, were sent into Pennsylvania, New York and Connecticut. It is unknown what happened to this John Renwick or if he had any descendants.

These were troubled times for protestants and for ministers who were part of the Covenanters of Scotland. It is said that they were such powerful preachers that, as they stood on the platform, ready to be beheaded or burned at the stake, they would sometimes preach long sermons before their execution.

James Renwick was only twenty-six when he died a martyr's death in Scotland in 1688. He is considered to be the last martyr killed in Scotland for his religious beliefs. There is a monument with an inscription bearing his name at the Greyfriars Church Yard at Edinburgh where he is buried.

The persecution came to an end in 1690 when the Church of Scotland was recognized as the National Church.

The Renicks in Ulster Ireland

There had always been some movement of peoples back and forth across the twelve mile North Channel between Scotland and the northeastern Irish coast. There is an early record of the Rennick surname in Ireland for a soldier who got a lease in County Kildare in 1585. However, the principal movement of people from the Lowlands of Scotland to the Northern Ireland Province of Ulster did not occur until the seventeenth century. This migration is estimated to include well over 100,000 Scottish Protestants, and took place during the 90-year period from 1607-1697. The vast majority of Lowland Scots did not come into Ulster until late in the 1600s and after their 25 to 35 year leases were up many decided to make the journey to America.

The opportunity for the planting of a Protestant colony in Ireland had come in September 1607, when the Roman Catholics in fear of King James, fled Ireland, taking refuge in France. This event resulted in the lands of these noblemen being forfeited to the English Crown. These included six of the nine counties of Ulster: Antrim, Down, Fermanagh, Tyrone, Coleraine, later renamed Londonderry, and Donegal.

King James attempted to bring over large numbers of English Protestants, but few English wished to migrate. Because of the poor economic conditions in Scotland at the time, many Lowland Scots were eager to make the relatively short distance move.

There were four Rennick men listed on the Muster rolls of County Fermanagh in 1631.

The Scots that had migrated to Ulster prospered so much over time that the English Parliament felt the competition of Irish goods was harmful to English ones. Laws were passed to protect English trade at Irish expense, which caused great distress in Ulster. Compounding the problems of the Ulster Protestants was the so-called "Test Act" which, although said to be directed at Roman Catholics, adversely affected the adherents of the Presbyterian faith as well. As most Scotch-Irish were Presbyterians, they felt that the English were persecuting them from both economic and religious standpoints.

By 1717, conditions had reached such a point that many Ulster Protestants began a new migration; this time to the American Colonies. It is estimated that more than a quarter of a million Scotch-Irish immigrated to America between the years 1717 and 1775.

The Renicks Come to America

The Scotch-Irish made America their homeland, and became ingrained into the fabric of America almost from the start. Soon after 1717 Ulster-Scots left for the new world as fast as they could obtain ship passage. Sometimes entire congregations and villages made the long voyage to America with most of the Ships landing at New Castle Delaware and Philadelphia Pennsylvania Ports.

The Presbyterian Ulstermen were not particularly welcomed by the Quakers and Puritans who thought the "Irish" as they were called then, fought and drank too much and the womenfolk flirted too much. The Scotch-Irish were tough fighters, so they were offered cheap land on the Frontier of Pennsylvania around present day Lancaster and Harrisburg.

Pennsylvania Renicks

According to most sources, the first traceable Renick ancestors in America were George Renick and his three sons, William, Thomas and Robert who are found in early land records in Pennsylvania and possibly a church record in 1711 in Philadelphia when the Abington Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia was being organized. We find the names of George, Margaret and Sara Rennick on that list. It has not been verified if this is the same George who received land in 1730.

We know that George Renick was from Iniskillen, Ulster, Ireland and that he was in Pennsylvania by at least 1719 because of a Lancaster County land grant in 1730 that reads:

"An Early Settler on the Susquehanna: Whereas George Renick, late of Iniskillen, having about eleven years since arrived in the province with the first settlers of Donegal, yet has never obtained leave to settle on any of the proprietor's lands, without which leave he never would presume to attempt it, and being now desirous that himself and three sons, William, Thomas, and Robert and his son-in-law, Robert Polke, might be allowed to settle down on some tract together in one neighbourhood, I therefore think it advisable that pursuant to his request he and his said sons and son-in-law be suffered to enter on the quantity of one thousand acres, near Susquehanna, between Sohataroe and Pextan, and that the same may be marked out to him and his said sons in a regular tract by the surveyor of Lancaster county or his order at the said George's charge, upon this express condition, that he and his said sons and son-in-law shall comply with such terms as shall be proposed by the proprietors or their agents, when lands in those parts shall be granted, or other wise shall quietly quitt the same. Dated at Stenton, the 25th day of January, 1730-1. James Logan Lett him begin on Susquehanna at least two miles above Soharatoe, running a proper distance back, and he may take in any settlement that is only begun and not actually inhabited. J.L." Egle's Notes & Queries, Historical and Genealogical page 83.

It appears that George and his sons remained in the Philadelphia area until around 1730 when George must have acquired the acreage. From later records, it appears his sons may not have been deeded land until after George's death.

We find George as an elder in the synod of Philadelphia in 1729, but George, his son William and his daughter and husband were excommunicated from the Abington Presbyterian Church in 1728. It is possible that this excommunication was a result of the family relocating to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, where we find George mentioned as an elder in the Old Paxton Church of Lancaster County in 1732.

Old Paxton Church

Paxtang Pennsylvania, one of the earliest organized settlements in the area, is home to the Old Paxton Church. The church is the oldest Presbyterian Church building in continuous use in Pennsylvania, and the second oldest in the United States. Its early history is closely interwoven with the colonial history of central Pennsylvania. In 1732 the Presbytery of Donegal officially organized the Paxton Presbyterian Church congregation. George Renick presented an invitation to Reverend William Bertram, from Bangor Ireland, to service the congregations at Paxton and Derry. Reverend Bertram was installed as the first pastor on November 15, 1732 at the meeting house on Swatara. William Renick was an elder in the Paxton Church in 1736 and Thomas in 1738.

John Elder, the famous "Fighting Parson," became pastor in 1738. He continued as pastor through the French and Indian War and the Revolutionary War, during which time he was a colonel. A plaque at the church honors him and names Henry Rennick, Ensign, who was a son of William Renick and grandson of George Renick.

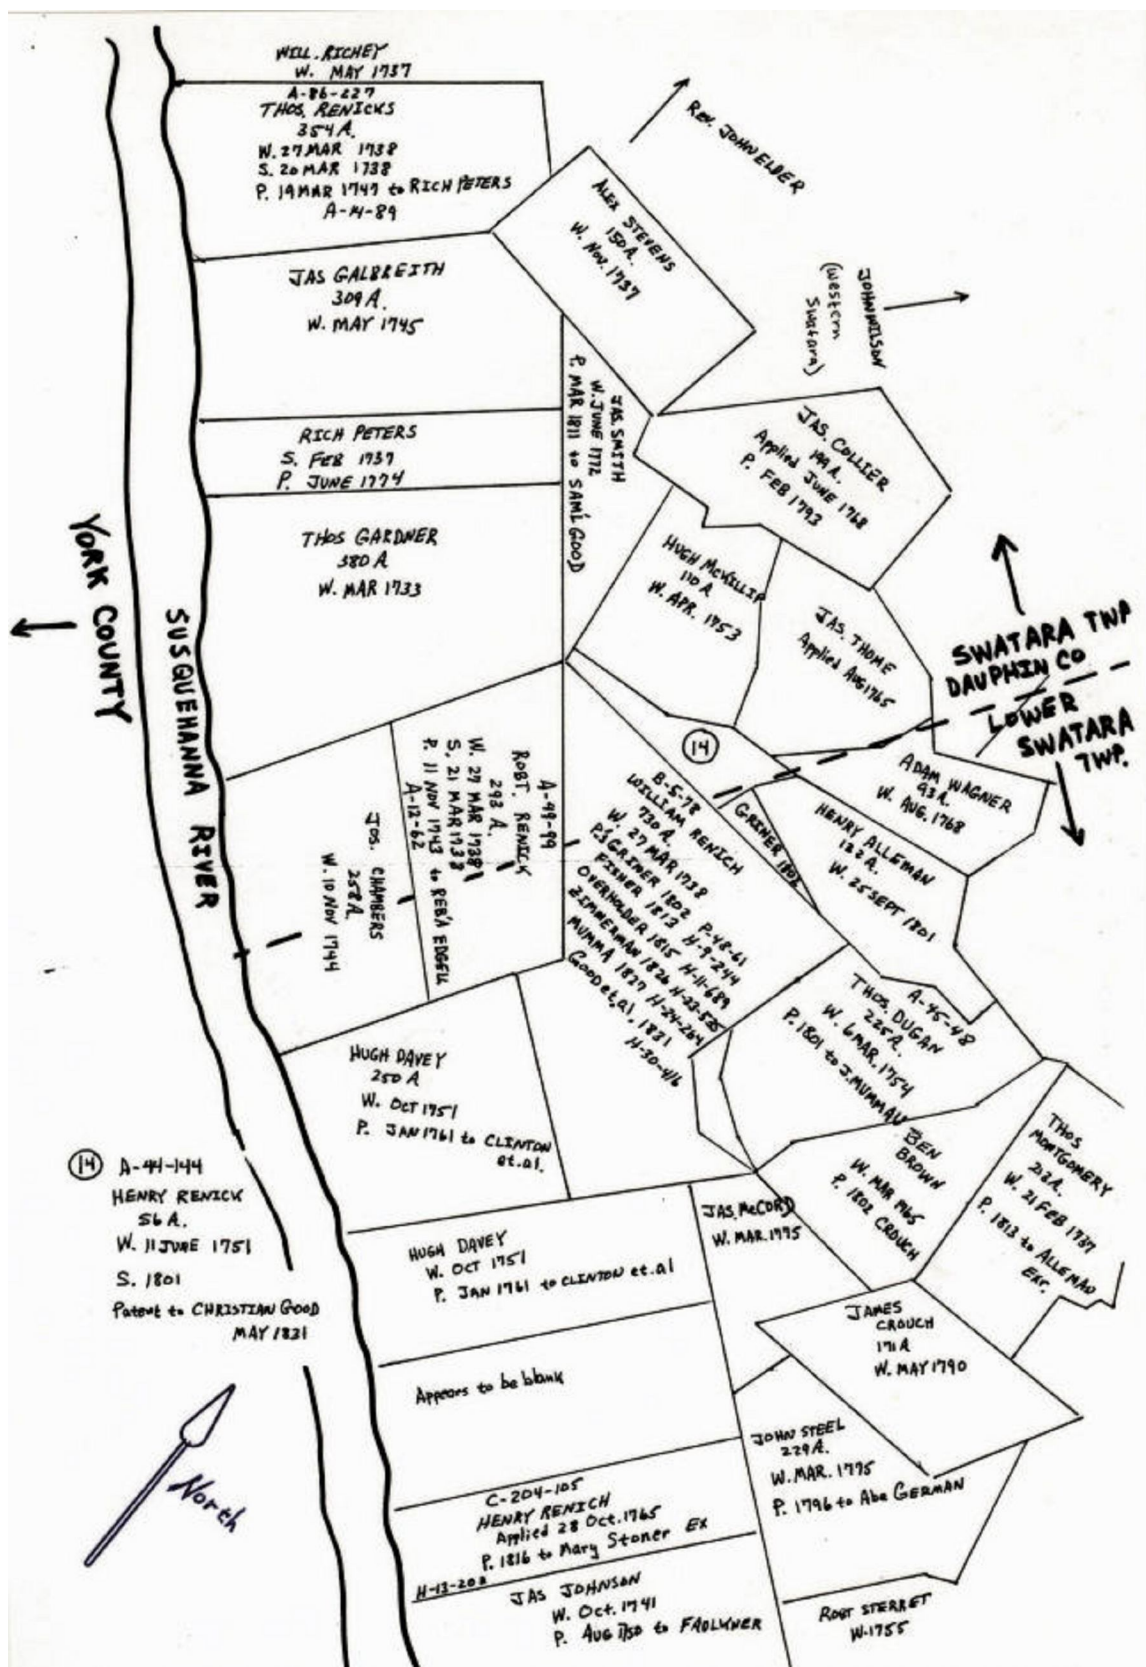

From 1733 to 1740 we find records of the Renick sons, Thomas and William, in Lancaster County Pennsylvania as members of juries, an assessor, applying to have a public house, instructed to view a road and as a delegate to the Presbytery.

George Renick died in 1737 without a will in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. An administrative bond to settle the estate was signed in 1737 by Robert and William Renick. George's estate was inventoried in 1737 also.

In the same year, we find William as Justice of the Peace in Swatara, Pennsylvania and also we find the church citing William for the bad language of his deceased father, George.

As part of the settlement of George's estate, his land was distributed among his heirs who included William, Thomas and Robert.

William Renick, son of George, never left Pennsylvania. However George's son Robert, probably his son Thomas and some of William's descendants migrated from Pennsylvania to Virginia about ten years after George's death.

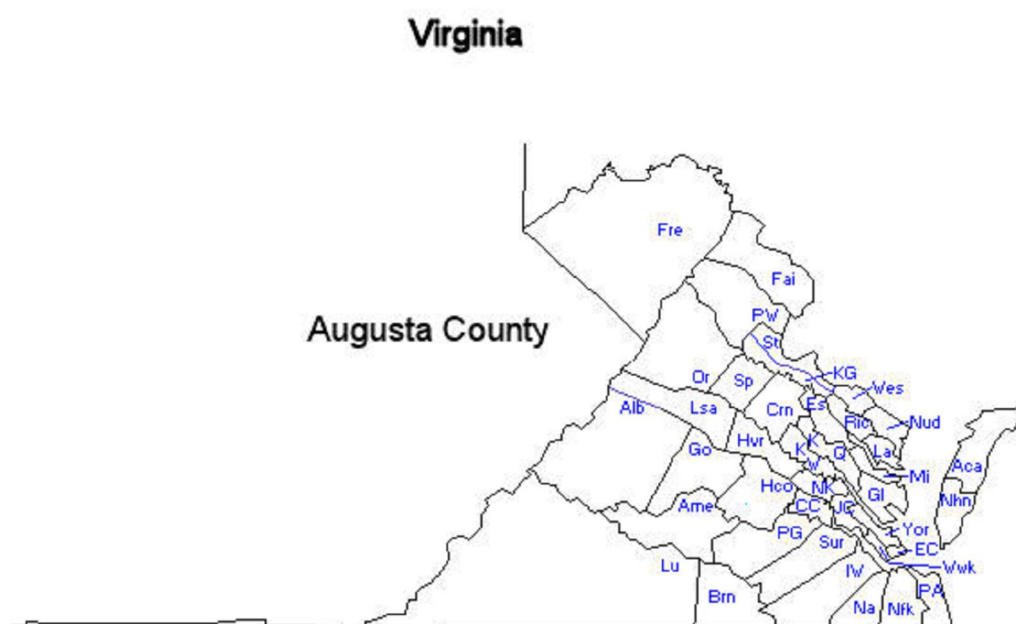

William died in 1745 in Lancaster PA. Records show his estate bills were being paid by his widow, probably through the sale of the land he had inherited from his father. Below is a copy of the inventory of the estate of William Rennix of Paxton, Lancaster County, PA, courtesy of Glenn Gealy

The Renicks in Virginia

The Scotch-Irish were starting to move south into Virginia by the 1740s since Virginia offered them cheap land. Thousands traveled the "Great Wagon Road" into the Appalachian country of Virginia.

The county boundaries of Virginia were constantly changing. Prior to 1776 Virginia claimed all of present day Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, parts of western Pennsylvania and the Northwest Territory. West Augusta County Virginia took in practically all of what is now West Virginia, and we find Renicks in Frederick or Augusta County in the early years.

Augusta/Frederick County Virginia

Robert Renick:

On June 10, 1740 Robert Renick (Rennock) patented 400 acres of land in Augusta County on the Buffalo Lick Branch. In 1747 Robert sold half of this land, 201 acres, to James Miles on the Buffalo Branch where "Robert Renick now lives". The following year Robert sold the other half, 199 acres, to Silas Hart. In 1751 Robert obtained another 241 acres of land in Augusta County from John Harrison.

In 1742 Robert is listed on the militia roll of Captain John Smith in Augusta County, VA and four years later he is commissioned Lieutenant of Horse and in 1752 he is named Captain of Troops. There is record of Robert being wounded at Braddock's defeat in 1756,

In 1757 Robert is in court regarding the will of John Smith which he had witnessed in 1753, and later that year Robert Renick was murdered by Indians.

August 20, 1757 Motion by Joshua Mathews that Robert and John Poage to be summoned to say whether either will administer on estate of Robert Renix, decd., they being nearest of kin.

From: Chronicles of Border Warfare by Alexander Scott Withers 'A New Edition' edited & annotated by Reuben Gold Thwaites, Secretary of the Wisconsin Historical Society 1895 pp. 89-91

"In the summer of *1761, about sixty Shawnee warriors penetrated the settlements on James River. To avoid the fort at the mouth of Looney's creek, on this river, they passed through Bowen's gap in Purgatory Mountain, in the night; and ascending Purgatory creek, killed Thomas Perry, Joseph Dennis and his child and made prisoner his wife, Hannah Dennis. They then proceeded to the house of Robert Renix, where they captured Mrs. Renix, (a daughter of Sampson Archer) and her five children, William, Robert, Thomas, Joshua and Betsy -- Mr. Renix not being at home. They then went to the house of Thomas Smith, where Renix was; and shot and scalped him and Smith; and took with them, Mrs. Smith and Sally Jew, a white servant girl.

(There is a footnote added at this point by Lyman Copeland Draper): The name is Renick. Robert Renick, who was killed on the occasion referred to, was a man of character and influence in his day. His name appears on Capt. John Smith's company roll of Augusta militia as early as 1742; and four years later, he was lieutenant of a mounted company of August militia. Instead of 1761, the captivity of the Renick family occurred *July 25, 1757, as shown by the Preston Register, which states that Renick and another were killed on that day -- Mrs. Renick and seven children, and a Mrs. Dennis captured; and the same day, at Craig's Creek, one man was killed and two wounded. The Renick traditions state that Mrs. Renick had only five children when taken; and one born after reaching the Indian towns; and corrects some other statements not properly related in Wither's narrative of the affair.)

Wither's narrative continues: William and Audley Maxwell, and George Matthews, (afterwards governor of Georgia,) were then going to Smith's house; and hearing the report of the guns, supposed that there was a shooting match. But when they rode to the front of the house and saw the dead bodies of Smith and Renix lying in the yard, they discovered their mistake; and contemplating for a moment the awful spectacle, wheeled to ride back. At this instant several guns were fired at them; fortunately without doing any execution except the cutting off the club of Mr. Matthews' cue. The door of the house was then suddenly opened; the Indians rushed out and raising the war cry, several of them fired -- Audley Maxwell was slightly wounded in the arm.

It appeared afterwards, that the Indians had seen Matthews and the Maxwells coming; and that some of them had crowded into the house, while the others with the prisoners went to the north side of it, and concealed themselves behind some fallen timber.

Mrs. Renix, after she was restored to her friends in 1766, stated that she was sitting tied, in the midst of four Indians, who laying their guns on a log, took deliberate aim at Matthews; the others firing at the Maxwells -- The sudden wheeling of their horses no doubt saved the lives of all three. The Indians divided, and twenty of them taking the prisoners, the plunder and some horses which they had stolen, set off by the way of Jackson's river, for the Ohio; the remainder started towards Cedar creek, with the ostensible view of committing further depredations.

But Matthews and the Maxwells had sounded the alarm, and the whole settlement were soon collected at Paul's stockade fort, at the Big spring near to Springfield. Here the women and children were left to be defended by Audley Maxwell and five other men; while the others, forming a party of twenty-two, with George Matthews at their head, set out in quest of the enemy.

The Indians were soon overtaken, and after a severe engagement, were forced to give ground. Matthews and his party followed in pursuit, as far as Purgatory creek; but the night being very dark in consequence of a continued rain, the fugitives effected an escape; and overtaking their comrades with the prisoners and plunder, on the next evening, at the forks of the James and Cowpasture rivers, proceeded to Ohio without further molestation.

When Matthews and his men, on the morning succeeding the engagement, returned to the field of battle, they found nine Indians dead; whom they buried on the spot. Benjamin Smith, Thomas Maury and the father of Sally Jew, were the only persons of Matthews' party who were killed -- these, together with those who had been murdered on the preceding day, were buried near the fork of a branch, in (what is now) the meadow of Thomas Cross, Sr. In Boquet's treaty with the Ohio Indians, it was stipulated that the whites detained by them in captivity were to be brought in and redeemed. In compliance with this stipulation, Mrs. Renix was brought to Staunton in 1767 and ransomed, together with two of her sons, William, the late Col. Renix of Greenbrier, and Robert, also of Greenbrier -- Betsy, her daughter, had died on the Miami.

Thomas returned in 1783, but soon after removed and settled, on the Scioto, near Chillicothe. Joshua never came back; he took an Indian wife and became a Chief among the Miamies -- he amassed a considerable fortune and died near Detroit in 1810"

After the release of the family of Robert from Indian captivity, some descendants settled near what is now Lewisburg and the town of Renick in Greenbrier County, WV. Robert's son built a home that is still standing.

From the National Registry of Historic Places:

“Governor Beverly Randolph of Virginia granted William Renick title to 400 acres of land at Falling Springs along the Seneca Trail about 12 miles north of Lewisburg. The grant date was May 29, 1787. The area at the time was known as West Augusta. On this land William built a fine house of native limestone taken from the land. The house was started by a local German immigrant stonemason named Christopher Foglesong in 1787 and complete in 1792.”

About 1820 a brick addition was added against the wall of the original house. The home is currently occupied, and the owners do not allow visitation.

Thomas Renick

It is probable that Thomas Renick, son of George, migrated to the same area of Virginia as his brother Robert. But it appears there might have been another Thomas in the same area. One Thomas appears to have died before 1744 while it appears that another Thomas was still alive in 1747 and 1748.

There is a record of a lawsuit in Augusta County against the estate of Thomas Renix on July 3, 1743. “Daniel Harrison having obtained an attachment against ye estate of Thomas Renix”. There is also a record of an administrative bond for the estate of Thomas Renick in Will Book 1, page 458 in 1751. It’s not likely that the bond in 1751 would be regarding an estate in 1743.

The question remains that if Thomas were deceased by 1743, who is the Thomas who appears in court in 1747 and purchases land in 1748?

In 1747 "Thomas Renick complains in court that Samuel Scot had abused him in the courtyard". In 1748 Thomas Renick purchased 270 acres on the Wappacomo or Great Southern Branch of the Potomac River.

Hampshire County was formed from Frederick County and Augusta Counties in 1753. In 1763 Hampshire (now Hardy) County Virginia land records note that George is eldest son of Thomas who is deceased. It is not known if this is one of the Thomases above or a third Thomas.

In 1786 Hardy County was formed from Hampshire County, VA and the Renicks of Ohio migrated from Hardy County Virginia.

Renicks of Ohio

Virginia claimed the Ohio Territory, and Ohio did not become a state until 1803. There are many records linking the Renicks in Hampshire and Hardy County Virginia to the Renicks who settled in Ross County, formed in 1798, and in what later became Pickaway County Ohio in 1810.

From: History of Pickaway County Ohio:

As Jackson Township was included in the Virginia Military District, many of the early settlers were from the Old Dominion. The Renicks were the first family to become established here.

Jonathan Renick, from Hardy County, Virginia, came to the township in 1798 and settled on Darby Creek, having purchased the Dade tract. A few years later he was joined by his father, John Renick, and other members of the family. The Renicks are widely represented in Pickaway County and are among its most prominent citizens. James Renick, the first sheriff of the county, who held the office from April 21, 1810, until 1814, was the son of John Renick, who came to Jackson township, from Hardy County, Virginia, prior to 1805, and a brother of Jonathan Renick, the first settler of Jackson township. Sheriff Renick was a general in the War of 1812, and a brave officer. He was elected Representative in the General Assembly of Ohio, in 1814, serving one term. For many years he was in the mercantile business in Circleville. He was a bachelor. His death occurred in 1844, at the residence of Jacob Van Meter, in Jackson Township

From: History of Franklin and Pickaway County Ohio 1880:

“William Renick, who was a direct descendant of the emigrants, was born and raised in Hardy county, Virginia, and was for a time deputy surveyor under Lord Fairfax, in surveying the southeastern counties of Virginia. By some accident he had his compass broken, and had to cease work until another compass could be ordered from London, England, which consumed some five or six months. His grandson, William Renick, of Circleville, Ohio, now has the latter compass in his possession. It is probably one hundred and twenty-five years old. William Renick had four sons and four daughters. The sons, Felix, George, Thomas, and William, came to the Scioto valley, from 1797 to 1803. All of them, previous to their final settlement, secured large and valuable tracts of land. The daughters all married, but remained in Virginia.

Thomas Renick and his wife both died the same day in August, 1804. William died in 1845, aged sixty-four years; Felix died in 1848, aged seventy-eight; and George died in 1863, aged eighty-seven years. George had three sons and three daughters. The sons, William, Josiah, and Harness, finally settled in Pickaway county, respectively, in 1826, 1828, and 1832; but all had done business in the county for years before, and have all been residents of the city of Circleville for many years. Mrs. N. J Turney, one of the daughters, has also been a resident of the county and city for over thirty years. The other daughters, Mrs. J. M. Terry, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Hugh Bell, of Chillicothe, were at one time also residents of the county. All the above mentioned sons and daughters of George Renick are still living.”

Felix Renick:

From several sources & family papers:

Felix Renick, Ohio pioneer, cattleman, was born in Hardy County, VA a son of William Renick who emigrated from Ireland to America and who became a deputy under Lord Fairfax in the survey of counties in southern Virginia. His ancestors, according to family tradition, were German. As a youth Renick with two friends made a trip of exploration into Ohio and investigated the region lying between the Scioto and Licking rivers. In 1801 he returned to Ohio to settle, purchasing of the government at Chillicothe a large tract of land in Ross County at $2.50 per an acre. About 1795 he had married Hannah See of Virginia; they were the parents of nine children. He was interested in children and erected at his own expense on his farm by the turnpike what was long known as the Felix Renick school house. He was also one of the founders and the first president of the Logan Historical Society and contributed several articles to its magazine, the American Pioneer.

Felix and his brother George Renick became the outstanding agricultural leaders in south central Ohio. They fed superior cattle for their day and were the first persons to make long overland drives of fa cattle to market. In 1802 they visited Kentucky and bought a herd of longhorns. In 1833 forty-six men in Ohio and two in Kentucky organized "the Ohio Company for importing English Cattle." This company employed Felix Renick to go to England to import some of the best improved cattle of that country. He sailed in January 1834, made a careful inspection of notable herds, and returned to American with nineteen head of shorthorns. This included several animals that later became famous progenitors. In 1835 a second, and again in 1836 a third consignment was brought from England to the Renick farm. On Oct. 29, 1836, an auction sale of these cattle was held on the farm south of Chillicothe. Forty-three animals brought $35.540. This was the most epoch-making cattle sale held in America up to that time. On Jan. 27, 1848, when in his seventy-eighth year, Renick was killed by a timber falling upon him at the Paint Creek ferry near Chillicothe. His remains lie in a little family cemetery overlooking the farm.

The smallest State park in Ohio is Renick Memorial State Park, only a few yards in length and width. The monument commemorates Felix Renick (1770-1848), an early Ohio livestock raiser who inaugurated the overland route to Eastern livestock markets in 1804 by driving his herds over Zane's Trace to Baltimore.

From the American Pioneer:

This first visit of Felix Renick to Ohio had made a deep impression upon his mind as to the future possibilities of the Scioto Valley for agricultural purposes. He was not the first Renick to visit Ohio. In 1797 George and Jonathan Renick had made a trip from Hardy County, Virginia, to Marietta, Ohio, and each of these men within a year located lands in the Scioto Valley. In the fall of 1802, George Renick, who was a brother of Felix, settled permanently in Ohio, and opened a general store at Chillicothe. He, however, had important farm interests and was from the first noted as a feeder of cattle.

George Renick – from a variety of sources:

George Renick, known as "Pappy", went to Chillicothe in 1803. He had been a shopkeeper in Moorefield, VA and had a dry goods store in Chillicothe. George was in the cattle business with his brother Felix. George and Dorothy had 11 children. The first child died in infancy.

Throughout Mr. Renick's long life he never enjoyed robust health; indeed, so much had his health become impaired, that in the spring of 1816, by the advice of his physician and friend, Dr. Scott, he removed to Woodford County, Kentucky, to a farm previously purchased for that purpose, selling off the greater part of his live stock, including all his extensive stock of fine blooded horses, and his fine stock of China hogs, which he had himself introduced into the country some years before, retaining a select few of his favorite cattle only. His health receiving no benefit from the change, he returned to Ohio in the fall of the same year. Thenceforth Mr. Renick's special attention, so far as live stock was concerned, was given to cattle almost exclusively, having commenced in that branch as early as 1804, by the purchase of a portion of the English blooded cattle brought to this country by Mr. John Patton, then lately deceased, from which stock Mr. Renick, by judicious breeding, raised some of the most gigantic sized animals of their kind ever produced in the United States, or that we have any record of in the world. Mr. Renick early and earnestly interested himself in the improvement of the livestock of the country, sparing neither time, trouble, nor expense to further his favorite purpose; indeed, his name for fifty years was identified with every improvement or effort made to improve the stock (cattle in particular) of the Scioto Valley, always taking an active and leading part; and doubtless to him more than to any other one man is due the credit of the present greatly improved stock of cattle of the country. Mr. Renick persistently eschewed a political life; the only office or nomination he could ever be induced to accept was that of Presidential Elector in favor of his early personal friend, Henry Clay. Mr. Renick was a man highly conscientious, moral, benevolent, extremely modest and unassuming, of unblemished honor and integrity.

George Renick had a son William who published "Correspondence and Reminiscences" in 1880 in Circleville Ohio. He included some family information.

A PARTIAL AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

OF THE

LIFE OF WILLIAM RENICK.

If in narrating some of the incidents which occurred during my youthful days—events indelibly fixed on my memory—I should seemingly exhibit a tendency to egotism, I hope any such appearance will be overlooked. I shall endeavor to state facts only, without exaggeration, and to refer only to such as will, in my judgment, be either entertaining or instructive.

My parents were both natives of Hardy county, Virginia. My father, George Renick, and my mother, Dorothy Harness, were married on the 27th day of September, 1802, and immediately thereafter removed to Chillicothe, Ohio, where I was born on the 12th of November, 1804.

I was the second child, the first born having died in infancy. Immediately on my father's arrival at Chillicothe he opened a store on quite an extensive scale for those days. The goods were purchased in Baltimore prior to his marriage. Although my father was raised on a farm, he had had considerable experience in merchandising in Moorfield, Virginia. He moreover possessed ample means for carrying on an extensive trade, and besides his credit was excellent in Baltimore, as well as in all other quarters with which he had business connections.

The journey of my parents from Moorfield, Virginia, to Chillicothe, Ohio, was made in a very unique style as compared with the present

Pg. 4 – The county was organized in 1799. The first county court was held at Henry Renick's, nine miles east of Glasgow. Halden Trigg, John McFerran, William Renick, Isaac Flippin, _____ Dooly and others, (nine in all) were Justices of the Peace.

Page 55 -- Henry Renick, who lived near the Buck Knob, was the first sheriff of this county. Richard Garnett, from the law establishing this county, could not determine whether he ought to give an official bond as Clerk of the Quarter Session Court. He consulted with his father, Judge John Garnett, and they concluded it would be most prudent to give a bond. Accordingly they prepared and executed one. Renick being a litigious man, and always in debt, concluded he would bring a suit against Garnett to recover the penalty of three hundred pounds, which the law gave for failing to execute a bond. He brought suit against Garnett to recover that penalty, thinking no bond had been given; but greatly to his consternation and disappointment, the court dismissed the suit and made him pay the costs. We have thought proper to give this explanation in order that you may understand the following poetry, composed by Abner Bowen in the year 1799, a copy of which having been sent to us, we now give you in word and figure.

"To describe the pike Buck I mean to do
Keep truth on my side and modesty too.
This stag, I am informed, lives near Buck Knob,
And has lately been striving his neighbor to rob.

I have sued the Clerk of our County,

And three hundred pounds to be my bounty,
 And if that my debts won't pay,
 I will distance all and run away."

Outline of some of the Descendants of George Renick 1680 - 1737

This information was gathered from many sources over several years. Some is documented and some is not.

We have not edited the information sent to us by descendants. Please keep this in mind and use this information only as a starting point in researching your own line.

1. GEORGE¹ RENICK¹ was born about 1690 in Ireland¹, and died about 1740¹.

From: Egle's Notes & Queries, Historical and Genealogical, p. 83.

"An Early Settler on the Susquehanna: Whereas George Renick, late of Iniskillen, having about eleven years since arrived in the province with the first settlers of Donegal, yet has never obtained leave to settle on any of the proprietor's lands, without which leave he never would presume to attempt it, and being now desirous that himself and three sons, William, Thomas, and Robert and his son-in-law, Robert Polke, might be allowed to settle down on some tract together in one neighbourhood, I therefore think it advisable that pursuant to his request he and his said sons and son-in-law be suffered to enter on the quantity of one thousand acres, near Susquehanna, between Sohataroe and Pextan, and that the same may be marked out to him and his said sons in a regular tract by the surveyor of Lancaster county or his order at the said George's charge, upon this express condition, that he and his said sons and son-in-law shall comply with such terms as shall be proposed by the proprietors or their agents, when lands in those parts shall be granted, or other wise shall quietly quittance the same. Dated at Stenton, the 25th day of January, 1730-1. JAMES LOGAN

Lett him begin on Susquehanna at least two miles above Sohataroe, running a proper distance back, and he may take in any settlement that is only begun and not actually inhabited. J.L."

Children of GEORGE RENICK are:

2. i. WILLIAM² RENICK, b. 1704, Ireland; d. Before 05 Jan 1763, Estate settled.
3. ii. THOMAS RENICK, b. About 1708, Ireland; d. 16 May 1751.
4. iii. ROBERT RENICK, b. About 1710, Ireland; d. 25 Jul 1757, Killed by Shawnee Indians.
- iv. ELIZABETH RENICK¹, b. About 1715, Ireland¹; m. ROBERT POAGE¹.

Notes for ELIZABETH RENICK:

Annals of Augusta Co, VA 1726-1871 reports 5/22/1740 Robert and Elizabeth were one of 14 families settling in Augusta Co. Children named are Margaret, John, Martha, Sarah, George, Mary, Elizabeth, William, Robert

Generation No. 2

2. WILLIAM² RENICK (GEORGE¹)¹ was born about 1704 in Ireland, and died Before 05 Jan 1763 date Estate settled. He married MARY ANN DUGAN 1733. She was born About 1709, and died 1747.

Notes for WILLIAM RENICK:

It has been said that he married an Ann Hamilton (1716-1806) in 1733. Others say her name was Mary Ann Dugan. It may be possible she was known by Ann and had a prior marriage. William died before 1763 since his estate was divided on January 5, 1763. His tract of land was known as "William Renick's place" and was bounded by land of Thomas Dugan on the east, by Patrick Montgomery on the North, and by George Fleming on the west, including a tract of 250 acres of land called Pollock's tract. He names his wife, Mary and heirs -- seven children. This information as well as the proximity of the land of Dugan lends credence to the wife being Mary Dugan at least at his death.

Children of WILLIAM RENICK and MARY DUGAN are:

6. ii. HENRY³ RENICK, b. 02 Dec 1725, Pennsylvania.
7. iii. THOMAS RENICK, b. 1730, Pennsylvania; d. May 1782.
- iv. MARGARET RENICK, b. 1733, Pennsylvania; d. 1778; m. FELIX SEYMOUR; b. 1725; d. 1798.

Notes for FELIX SEYMOUR:

It is said Margaret Renick married Sir Felix Seymour who was the grandson of the Earl of Hertford in England. He was brought from Northern Ireland to Virginia in 1735. His father returned to England and was believed to have been lost at sea. He was left with a "Mr." Renick. In February, 1786, Felix Seymour was a justice of Hardy Co, VA

3. THOMAS² RENICK (*GEORGE*¹)¹ was born About 1708 in Ireland¹, and died 16 May 1751¹.

"The History of Hardy County," states:

"Family tradition relates that two brothers came from Londonderry in the North of Ireland with their aged father, suffering various adventures when the emigrant ship . . . The Renick name was more common in County Fermanagh than in County Londonderry in the eighteenth century, but it is still found in Northern Ireland."

"Several Renicks settled at Paxton Township in Lancaster (present Dauphin) County, Pennsylvania. A George Renick died there in 1737. A Thomas Renick filed a survey on land in Paxton in 1739 and obtained a warrant for it in 1744. A William Renick who died in Paxton in 1741 left six children, including a Thomas, who were still living there in 1763."

"The similarity of given names might suggest family relationship, but nothing is known of Thomas Renick's activities before he obtained his grant on the South Branch. He died in 1751. Robert Renick, a brother or cousin, appeared briefly on the South Branch, but quickly moved on to Greenbrier.

"Family tradition related that Felix Seymour, who had known Thomas Renick in Ireland, came to America with his nine-year-old son in 1736. When the father returned for the rest of the family, they were lost at sea. The Renicks raised Felix Seymour, Jr. In 1753 he married Margaret Renick, George Renick's sister. The Seymours evidently lived on the manor. Like their Dutch neighbors, family ties and links of friendship in their former home were important to the Scotch-Irish pioneers."

"Mary Welton, who obtained title to 406 acres on the drains of Lunice Creek in her own name in 1754, later married George Renick. In 1766 and 1771 George and Mary Renick sold this property to Felix Seymour. George Renick was the eldest son and heir of Thomas Renick, to whom Fairfax granted 270 acres on the bend of the South Branch just above Milleson's Mill in present Hampshire County in 1748."

ORDER BOOK No. VI.

AUGUST 20, 1757.

Motion Joshua Mathews--Robert and John Poage to be summoned to say whether either will administer on estate of Robert Renix, decd., they being nearest of kin.

"Chronicles of Border Warfare" pp. 89-91 by Alexander Scott Withers ('A New Edition' edited & annotated by Reuben Gold Thwaites, Secretary of the Wisconsin Historical Society 1895)

"In the summer of 1761, about sixty Shawnee warriors penetrated the settlements on James river. To avoid the fort at the mouth of Looney's creek, on this river, they passed through Bowen's gap in Purgatory mountain, in the night; and ascending Purgatory creek, killed Thomas Perry, Joseph Dennis and his child and made prisoner his wife, Hannah Dennis. They then proceeded to the house of Robert Renix, where they captured Mrs. Renix, (a daughter of Sampson Archer) and her five children, William, Robert, Thomas, Joshua and Betsy -- Mr. Renix not being at home. They then went to the house of Thomas Smith, where Renix was; and shot and scalped him and Smith; and took with them, Mrs. Smith and Sally Jew, a white servant girl. (There is a footnote added at this point by Lyman Copeland Draper): The name is Renick. Robert Renick, who was killed on the occasion referred to, was a man of character and influence in his day. His name appears on Capt. John Smith's company roll of Augusta militia as early as 1742; and four years later, he was lieutenant of a mounted company of August militia. Instead of 1761, the captivity of the Renick family occurred July 25, 1757, as shown by the Preston Register, which states that Renick and another were killed on that day -- Mrs. Renick and seven children, and a Mrs. Dennis captured; and the same day, at Craig's Creek, one man was killed and two wounded. The Renick traditions state that Mrs. Renick had only five children when taken; and one born after reaching the Indian towns; and corrects some other statements not properly related in Wither's narrative of the affair.) Wither's narrative continues: William and Audley Maxwell, and George Matthews, (afterwards governor of Georgia,) were then going to Smith's house; and hearing the report of the guns, supposed that there was a shooting match. But when they rode to the front of the house and saw the dead bodies of Smith and Renix lying in the yard, they discovered their mistake; and contemplating for a moment the awful spectacle, wheeled to ride back. At this instant several guns were fired at them; fortunately without doing any execution except the cutting off the club of Mr. Matthews' cue. The door of the house was then suddenly opened; the Indians rushed out and raising the war cry, several of them fired -- Audley Maxwell was slightly wounded in the arm. It appeared afterwards, that the Indians had seen Matthews and the Maxwells coming; and that some of them had crowded into the house, while the others with the prisoners went to the north side of it, and concealed themselves behind some fallen timber. Mrs. Renix, after she was restored to her friends in 1766, stated that she was sitting tied, in the midst of four Indians, who laying their guns on a log, took deliberate aim at Matthews; the others firing at the Maxwells -- The sudden wheeling of their horses no doubt saved the lives of all three. The Indians divided, and twenty of them taking the prisoners, the plunder and some horses which they had stolen, set off by the way of Jackson's river, for the Ohio; the remainder started towards Cedar creek, with the ostensible view of committing further depredations. But Matthews and the Maxwells had sounded the alarm, and the whole settlement were soon collected at Paul's stockade fort, at the Big spring near to Springfield. Here the women and children were left to be defended by Audley Maxwell and five other men; while the others, forming a party of twenty-two, with George Matthews at their head, set out in quest of the enemy. The Indians were soon overtaken, and after a severe engagement, were forced to give ground. Matthews and his party followed in pursuit, as far as Purgatory creek; but the night being very dark in consequence of a continued rain, the fugitives effected an escape; and overtaking their comrades with the prisoners and plunder, on the next evening, at the forks of the James and Cowpasture rivers, proceeded to Ohio without further molestation. When Matthews and his men, on the morning succeeding the engagement, returned to the field of battle, they found nine Indians dead; whom they buried on the spot. Benjamin Smith, Thomas Maury and the father of Sally Jew, were the only persons of Matthews' party who were killed -- these, together with those who had been murdered on the preceding day, were buried near the fork of a branch, in (what is now) the meadow of Thomas Cross, Sr. In Boquet's treaty with the Ohio Indians, it was stipulated that the whites detained by them in captivity were to be brought in and redeemed. In compliance with this stipulation, Mrs. Renix was brought to Staunton in 1767 and ransomed, together with two of her sons, William, the late Col. Renix of Greenbrier, and Robert, also of Greenbrier -- Betsy, her daughter, had died on the Miami. Thomas returned in 1783, but soon after removed and settled, on the Scioto, near Chillicothe. Joshua never came back; he took an Indian wife and became a Chief among the Miamies -- he amassed a considerable fortune and died near Detroit in 1810"

From Trans-Allegheny Pioneers 1886 John P Hale:

Robert Renick was described as a mature man when he came to Virginia in 1740. He is described as a man of charter and influence in his day. In Chalkey, Vol. 1, page 76, records of Augusta County, is found this entry illustrating of the repute of Robert Renick: June 17, 1757. This was just a month before his death. John Smith's will presented. Robert Renick, the remaining witness proved it, and the court, knowing the signature of testator and witness, it is recorded. His name appears on Capt. John Smith's roll of Augusta Militia as early as 1742, and four years later, Feb. 19, 1746, he was commissioned Lieutenant of Horse, and on Aug. 19, 1752, Capt. of Troops. He was wounded at Braddock's defeat July 9, 1756.

The Virginia records show that on June 10, 1740, Robert Renick received a patent to 400 acres of land on the Buffalo Lick Branch in Augusta County, Va. and on Nov. 10, 1757, Robert Renick obtained a patent to 90 acres on Purgatory Creek, a branch of the James River.

The records of Augusta County show that the grantee wrote his name Renick. This signature is attached to a conveyance of May 25, 1747, to James Miles for 201 acres on the Buffalo Branch, "being part of the land Robert Renick now lives on; and to one Feb. 14, 1748, to Silas Hart for 199 acres, part of 400 acres granted to Robert Renick by patent dated June 10, 1740' and to one of Nov. 25, 1751, to --- (name illegible) for 300 acres on 'a head branch of Cedar Creek, a branch of James River at a place called the timber plain. " Nov. 6, 1751, John Harrison conveyed to this Renick 241 acres of land in Augusta County.

In an article in the Kanawha Register September 4, 1829:
Capt. Robert Renick was wounded at Braddock's defeat.

Lexington, Virginia Intelligencer, January 13, 1826

A letter is quoted from Col. John Stuart, in the in regard to the Bouquet treaty, that Mrs. Renick and children were restored in 1764, and that Thomas Renick son of Robert, settled in Chillicothe, Ohio. On July 25, 1757, the Indians made a raid on the Jackson's River settlement, in which Captain Robert Renick was killed, and his family taken captive.

From: Trans-Allegheny Pioneers "One of his sons Joshua, remained with the Indians, and died on Lake Earie about 1810, a Miami Chief. He is said to have visited his family frequently .

Notes for Elizabeth Archer Renick

From Internet Website: <http://www.rootsweb.com/~nwa/renick.html>

Elizabeth Archer, daughter of Rebecca Thompson and Sampson Archer, married Robert Renick in 1741. Elizabeth had come from northern Ireland in 1737 with her family, which took up claim to 1,000 acres near Natural Bridge. Her husband had settled in Augusta County, VA in 1740. They lived in what was then the frontier, along what is now the WV/VA border, near Lewisburg, WV.

On July 25, 1757, a band of about 60 Shawnee Indians stole past the fort, which was near the Renicks' wilderness home. They made captives of Elizabeth and her children Joshua, William, Betsy, Margaret, Nancy, Thomas, and Robert. Elizabeth was pregnant at the time. They went on to a neighboring house where Mr. Renick and another person were visiting, and killed and scalped the men in view of the children. They then embarked on a long journey to the Miami Indian town in Ohio. Along the way, the incessant crying of little Robert, an infant, resulted in an Indian killing the baby by striking him against a tree.

The children and Mrs. Renick were separated and divided up among their captors. They were in captivity until October, 1764, when Col. Henry Bouquet led an expedition which crippled the tribes in that area and demanded a hostage release. Elizabeth and the female children were released with a total of 88 captives, though it was 1765 before she and her daughters reached Staunton, VA (near their homestead). Her sons followed home within a year. Elizabeth had to contend with children that did not know her who had adopted Indian ways and who feared leaving the tribe.

The child that Elizabeth had been carrying was born in captivity, and was named Robert after both his dead father and brother. Joshua Renick later returned to the Miamis, where he became a leader of a small tribe. William Renick, Joshua's younger brother, became a soldier and spent his life fighting the Indians. William Renick served in an expedition that resulted in the Battle of Point Pleasant, where the Shawnee leader

"Cornstalk" was killed, ending forever the strength of the Shawnees and assuring their inevitable submission. Elizabeth lived out her natural lifespan near the area where her home had been attacked. There was at one time a roadside historic marker at this spot, which has apparently been removed due to interstate highway expansion.

Once, while on a Dickey project, and puzzled by some Chester Co records involving the names Cowan, Renick, and Dickey, I did a very quick look at materials which were close at hand in Philadelphia. He does not appear with his children on the Clift List (1800) when the families settled in Barren County.

Note: It is possible the location was Moorefield, VA where many other Renicks lived. We have not located a present nor past Moreland in Virginia.

In his History of Hardy County (Walsworth, 1986), Richard K. MacMaster contends that "George Renick was the eldest son and heir of Thomas Renick, to whom [Lord] Fairfax granted 270 acres on the bend of the South Branch just above Milleson's Mill in present Hampshire County in 1748." He further argues that "nothing is known of Thomas Renick's activities before he obtained his grant on the South Branch" and notes that "[h]e died in 1751." MacMaster also implies that similar names have led to incorrect conclusions about ties between the Renicks of Paxtang Township and those of Hardy County. From: Bob Juch <http://www.Juch.org>

From several sources & family papers:

Felix Renick, Ohio pioneer, cattleman, was born in Hardy County, VA a son of William Renick who emigrated from Ireland to America and who became a deputy under Lord Fairfax in the survey of counties in southern Virginia. His ancestors, according to family tradition, were German. As a youth Renick with two friends made a trip of exploration into Ohio and investigated the region lying between the Scioto and Licking rivers. In 1801 he returned to Ohio to settle, purchasing of the government at Chillicothe a large tract of land in Ross County at $2.50 per an acre. About 1795 he had married Hannah See of Virginia; they were the parents of nine children. He was interested in children and erected at his own expense on his farm by the turnpike what was long known as the Felix Renick school house. He was also one of the founders and the first president of the Logan Historical Society and contributed several articles to its magazine, the American Pioneer.

Felix and his brother George Renick became the outstanding agricultural leaders in south central Ohio. They fed superior cattle for their day and were the first persons to make long overland drives of fa cattle to market. In 1802 they visited Kentucky and bought a herd of longhorns. In 1833 forty-six men in Ohio and two in Kentucky organized "the Ohio Company for importing English Cattle." This company employed Felix Renick to go to England to import some of the best improved cattle of that country. He sailed in January 1834, made a careful inspection of notable herds, and returned to American with nineteen head of shorthorns. This included several animals that later became famous progenitors. In 1835 a second, and again in 1836 a third consignment was brought from England to the Renick farm. On Oct. 29, 1836, an auction sale of these cattle was held on the farm south of Chillicothe. Forty-three animals brought $35,540. This was the most epoch-making cattle sale held in America up to that time. On Jan. 27, 1848, when in his seventy-eighth year, Renick was killed by a timber falling upon him at the Paint Creek ferry near Chillicothe. His remains lie in a little family cemetery overlooking the farm.

The smallest State park in Ohio is Renick Memorial State Park, only a few yards in length and width. The monument commemorates Felix Renick (1770-1848), an early Ohio livestock raiser who inaugurated the overland route to Eastern livestock markets in 1804 by driving his herds over Zane's Trace to Baltimore and other cities. Renick was the first American to import (1834) full-blooded Shorthorn cattle from Europe, and held the first public sale of the breed in this country not far from the park site.

Children of FELIX RENICK are:

- i. RACHEL⁵ RENICK⁵, b. About 1800⁵.
32. ii. ELIZABETH RENICK, b. 31 Mar 1800; d. 28 Aug 1878.

16. JOHN⁴ RENICK (*THOMAS*², *GEORGE*¹)⁵ was born About 1754, and died 1784 in Will left estate to 4 sisters and a cousin. He married MARY HEATH⁵. She was born 1753⁵, and died 1850⁵.

Was an ensign with the Virginia troops and his commission was signed by Thomas Jefferson. In 1929, H. C. Renick of Circleville, Ohio has this commission.

From Renick researcher: John was born in Hampshire Co. VA on Oct.10,1750. He married Mary Heath, daughter of Rachel and Nathan Heath, in 1771. Mary was born in Hampshire Co. VA on 3/29/1753 and died 9/15/1834. John died on Jan 13, 1814 and is buried in Chillicothe at the base of the hill which the Renick home was on. You can see this from Rt. 23

From the Pickaway Ohio County Website:

JACKSON TOWNSHIP

Jackson township was first settled in 1798. In 1774, however, John Joliff; a private soldier of the army of Lord Dunmore, then at Camp Charlotte, made a survey of a choice tract of land in this township, embracing some 4,000 or 5,000 acres and lying west of Circleville. The survey, whose regularity was afterward confirmed by the courts, was made, it is said, without compass or chain and was likely the first survey made in the State. Small bands of Indians were in evidence here for some years after the first settlement, but they were of a peaceable disposition and seldom committed any serious misdemeanor.

The township lies west of the Scioto River and east of Muhlenberg and Monroe townships. It is traversed from northwest to southeast by Darby Creek, along whose banks a number of grist and sawmills were operated at an early day. The township was organized after the erection of Pickaway County. The early elections were held in the log house of Anthony Hall, near the mills that were operated by him. The first justice of the peace was William Florence. The present officers of the township are as follows : Trustees--Albert F. Krimmel, William Dewey and H. J. Shook; clerk, Wayne A. Hoover ; treasurer, John S. Neff ; assessors--South precinct; Charles Justice--North precinct, M. E. Dean; justices of the peace--Seymour F. Ridgway and David Adkins. The population, as given in the census of 1900, is 1,205.

EARLY SETTLERS

As Jackson township was included in the Virginia Military District, many of the early settlers were from the Old Dominion. The Renicks were the first family to become established here. Jonathan Renick, from Hardy County, Virginia, came to the township in 1798 and settled on Darby Creek, having purchased the Dade tract. A few years later he was joined by his father, John Renick, and other members of the family. The Renicks are widely represented in Pickaway County and are among its most prominent citizens.

The Renick M. E. Church, about seven miles from Circleville on the Florence Chapel turnpike, was organized.. in the early '80's.

CEMETERIES.

It is thought that the first burials in this township were made in the all burying-ground, on the bank of Darby Creek, as the inscriptions on the tombstones go back as far as 1807. Many Halls are buried here as well as members of neighboring families. In another burying-ground is found the tombstone of John Renick, the pioneer, who died in 1814.

Only a few years after the first settlement was made, a schoolhouse, the first in the township, was erected just below John Renick's place, near what was called "Strawberry Prairie.". This was about 1807

James Renick, the first sheriff of the county, who held the office from April 21, 1810, until 1814, was the son of John Renick, who. came to Jackson township, from Hardy County, Virginia, prior to 1805, and a brother of Jonathan Renick, the first settler of Jackson township. Sheriff Renick was a general in the War of 1812, and a brave officer. He was elected Representative in the General Assembly of Ohio, in 1814, serving one term. For many years he was in the mercantile business in Circleville. He was a bachelor. His death occurred in 1844, at the residence of Jacob Van Meter, in Jackson township.

From Mary Miller dwmiller@flash.net

Researching Leonard HALL born about 1728 married about 1750 possibly in Prince George County in the western part of Maryland Joanna LYTTON/LETTON daughter of Caleb. Leonard HALL settled first in Bedford Co., VA then moved on to Kentucky with daughters Ruth and Prudence marrying brothers Henry and Samuel RENICK and helped to found Barren Co.,KY. About 1819 this RENICK/HALL group moved to Missouri and resided in Ray, Lafayette, and Jackson Counties, MO

About the suit over the feather bed--I thought you'd like to know there was more to it than that. I'm descended from Leonard Hall, who had a land grant of 1400 acres in Kentucky. He first settled in Bourbon, where some of his children stayed, then moved to Barren with the younger children, living near Henry Renick. Henry Renick and a younger son, Mahlon Hall, were made executors, and when he died, they sold some land Leonard owned in Clark County and pocketed the proceeds--or so the lawsuit goes. They were brought to court by Caleb Hall, the elder son who lived in Bourbon. The rest of the 12 Hall kids sided with one side or the other, and it was a mess. Before it was all over, they all gave depositions. My Joannah Hall Hardwick finally admitted that a female slave given to her by her father was supposed to be part of her share of his estate. All the papers are on file in Barren County, and it is a fine example of kids squabbling over an estate. Leonard would turn over in his grave! Anyhow, I thought you'd find that of interest--there was more than a feather bed at stake!

Page 55 -- Henry Renick, who lived near the Buck Knob, was the first sheriff of this county. Richard Garnett, from the law establishing this county, could not determine whether he ought to give an official bond as Clerk of the Quarter Session Court. He consulted with his father, Judge John Garnett, and they concluded it would be most prudent to give a bond. Accordingly they prepared and executed one. Renick being a litigious man, and always in debt, concluded he would bring a suit against Garnett to recover the penalty of three hundred pounds, which the law gave for failing to execute a bond. He brought suit against Garnett to recover that penalty, thinking no bond had been given; but greatly to his consternation and disappointment, the court dismissed the suit and made him pay the costs. We have thought proper to give this explanation in order that you may understand the following poetry, composed by Abner Bowen in the year 1799, a copy of which having been sent to us, we now give you in word and figure.

"To describe the pike Buck I mean to do
Keep truth on my side and modesty too.
This stag, I am informed, lives near Buck Knob,
And has lately been striving his neighbor to rob.

I have sued the Clerk of our County,
And three hundred pounds to be my bounty,
And if that my debts won't pay,
I will distance all and run away."

I am related to Benjamin Franklin Renick through his daughter Sarah (Sally) The dates that you have listed for my gr. grandmother and her siblings are incorrect. They were all born to B.F.'s second wife Mary Margaret Taylor Renick. Many of this branch of the Renick family are buried in Mount Sterling, Ohio at Pleasant Cemetery. I have more information on that branch of the Renick family if you are interested.

My line is from Benjamin Franklin(5) Renick (your #82). BF was born on 12/5/1808 in Jackson Township Pickaway Co. Ohio. He married Sarah Williams on 11/15/1841. Sarah and BF had 2 boys and 2 girls together. All four children died of TB, as did Sarah at age 35 (1854)

BF then married Mary Margaret Taylor on 11/18/1855. Mary was born 4/2/1833 and is the daughter of Warner Throckmorton Taylor(1807-1882) and Jane Blackburn(1815-1902). Mary Margaret Taylor Renick died 1/13/1911 and is buried next to BF Renick at Pleasant Cemetery, Mount Sterling, Madison Co. Ohio. BF died of kidney failure on 8/7/1901.

They had nine children together:

1- Sarah Williams Renick (Sally) MY gr. grandmother - born 10/16/1856 married John Theodore Kirkendall on 9/29/1880. She died on 3/13/1935 and is buried with JTKirkendall at Pleasant Cemetery, Mount Sterling, Madison Co. Ohio. John T. Kirkendall was born 11/27/1845 and died 11/22/1895.

2- Jane Renick (called Jennie)- was born _____ and never married. She died on 5/5/1935. Buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

3- Ella Renick- born _____ married Charles Allen. Died in 1939 and is buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

4- Job Radcliffe Renick- born _____ 1863. Married Willa May Yoakum in 1897 (She was born May 1876, died 5/9/ 1950) Job died on 4/16/1946. They are both buried at Pleasant Cemetery. My father knew Job in his later years --Job was hard of hearing and carried an iron ear horn to help him hear.

Job and Willa May had three children:

Dhel Renick born 2/23 or 25- (I can't read it)/1899, died 4/12/1988 Buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

Harford J. Renick - born 1/30/1900

Wendell E. Renick - born 3/2/1903, died 2/26/1968. Buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

I may have more information on Job's children.

5- Edward T. Renick - drown as a child in the run between the house and the barn

6- Seymour Renick - Born 1860ish married Rena Marcey (born about 1868-2/19/1951) Seymour died on 11/13/1951. They are both buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

7- Benjamin Franklin Renick- (called Frank) Born 1866. Died 1941. Married Lora Smith(b-about1876,d-7/13/1933). Both are buried at Pleasant Cemetery. They had 5 children.

Warner Taylor Renick-called Taylor- b.April 16,1905,d.6/3/1988 buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

BF Renick b. 9/26/1897 twin, d.2/11/1996

Loren Foy Renick b. 9/26/1897 twin, d.4/4/1990

Dorothy Renick b. 1907 (born 3/20/1903 according to SSdi d. Apr 15 2002)

Edgar Renick b. 1910

8- Amanda Renick - born 1857. Married Tom H. Carpenter (d.8/6/1943) She died October 1940. They had one son Gregg Renick Carpenter born around 1893, died 1/27/1973. My father has a copy of Gregg's will that mentions many of the Renick cousins. Gregg was very wealthy and since he never married his estate was spread between his family. I have not yet seen this will. All three are buried at Pleasant Cemetery.

9- Warner Taylor Renick - died 8/14/1934

This is not all I have, but all I have at this moment. My father and I pass notebooks back and forth. Neither of us have been very active lately researching anything. Most of what I have shared was done by my grandfather in the 30's and 40's. I will have to send more information on birthdates... sorry that is incomplete. Feel free to ask any questions that might clarify the jumble I sent to you.

There is a website for the Pleasant Cemetery at:

<http://www.interment.net/data/us/oh/madison/pleasant/index.htm>

There you will find several more Renicks listed.

From his autobiography:

His father died a short time before he was born. His mother had a 90-acre farm. She married Lewis Franklin in 1841, so the children had a stepfather. The farm Bill was reared on grew wheat and oats. They had horses, sheep and a flock of geese. He wore all home-spun clothing made by this mother. His shoes were made by a neighbor shoemaker. His mother was a disciple of Alexander Campbell (found of the Disciples of Christ, Christian Church. He worked on the farm and could only attend school on bad days. He attended Beech Seminary -- a small log building having a large fireplace in one end; the seats were thick slabs with large wooden pins for legs. He walked 3 miles to school, generally barefooted. In "early life" he moved to Boone County, Indiana, and on February 7, 1861 in Hendrix Co, Indiana, he married Mary Ann Todd, daughter of William Todd. He lived for several years in Brownsburg, Hendrix County where 5 boys and one girl were born. He separated from his wife and family and went to Morgan County Indiana. He wrote several poems which were published in a small booklet which is still in the family and from which this biographical data was derived. He died October 5, 1906 in Franklin Township, Johnson County, Indiana.

My Grandfather Thomas died before I was born but his widow lived for many years after his death and I knew her well. Thomas owned a Painting business in Indianapolis along with partners and was an officer in the Painters Union. Thomas was in Sunnyside TB hospital for a time and the business failed. My father James Renick said his Dad mixed his own Paint and they used Lead back in those days so he thought that contributed to his Father's medical problems. Nellie lived for many years with her Brother-in-Law Ralph Renick and wife Julia.

She was born 19 Jul 1914 in Carpentersville, Marion Co, Indiana, and died Jul 1993 in Indianapolis, Marion Co, IN.

Notes for JAMES ALFONSO RENICK:

According to Jim Renick, he was born in Davenport Iowa through rather unusual circumstances. While his mother was pregnant, his father "hopped a freight train" with some friends. However, as he was getting into the box car, he fell and broke his leg. When the train stopped in Davenport Iowa, a doctor was called to set his leg. While he was recuperating, he agreed to work for the doctor to pay off his bill. He sent for his wife and Jim was born in Iowa. The Family returned to Indiana just a few years later.

James lived in Indianapolis and worked for the post office as a mail carrier for awhile. He also worked as a bookkeeper for a railroad company and sold insurance. To make some extra money he worked with a man who took pictures of children on ponies. Jim quit the Post Office and opened a Photographic Potrait studio in Indianapolis about 1941.

In 1945 just after WW II, his cousin, Ralph Renick, decided to come to Florida to visit his future wife and Jim accompanied him. Ralph moved to Tampa and Jim stayed in the Ocala area of Florida. He opened a portrait studio "Photo-Craft Studios" in downtown Ocala which he owned for many years. He loved to fish, hunt and play Cards and Golf with friends. He was a master mason in the Ft. McCoy lodge and a member of the Anthony, Fl. Methodist Church where he sang in the Chior.

He lived to the age of 95, and died at the Masonic Home in St Petersburg, FL and is buried in St Petersburg at Memorial Gardens at 49th St and 54 Ave N.

Notes for RODERICK DHU JR RENICK:

Roderick Dhu Renick, Jr. was born September 23, 1927 in East St. Louis, St. Clair County, Illinois to Roderick and Alberta (Chaffin) Renick. Rod grew up in East St. Louis and enlisted the U.S. Coast Guard at age 16 and was assigned to the patrol frigate USS Albuquerque in the Bering Sea. Later his ship sailed to Pearl Harbor Hawaii to assist in the clean up and removal of the dead. After the war he finished High School and attended Northeastern Teachers College in Kirksville Missouri on the GI bill. Rod enrolled in the Missouri National Guard during that time. While in college he met Jane Snider of Kirksville and they were married on May 4, 1947. After graduation he went into broadcasting until the outbreak of the Korean War whereupon he re-enlisted in the US Army and was sent to Korea as a 1st Lieutenant in the Armored Cavalry. His career included many varied assignments both here at home and abroad, including further combat service in Vietnam. He was awarded the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with clusters and a multitude of other military decorations. During his service Rod acquired a Masters degree and a Phd in Political Science from Tulane University. I would joke about what his real title was, Doctor General or General Doctor. He served this nation for nearly 40 years, retiring as a Major General (2 stars) in 1986. Rod and Jane settled in Escondido, California for their golden years of golf, grandkids and gardening until his passing in June of 2000. He was buried at Arlington National Cemetery with the full honors before itting a life of service. General Renick is survived by wife Jane, sons Roderick Dhu III and Scot Andrew and daughter Susan Christin. As you can see he was not only a remarkable man and patriot, but led a wonderfully adventurous life, which I was fortunate to share in..... Scot Renick
